CEE'S HISTORY

The Center for Education Equity (CEE) is an amazing non-profit, youth prevention organization, volunteer operated with little funding. Founded in June 2000, after a series of compelling articles in the Greenville News, revealed the huge disparities and gaps affecting low-income students in Greenville County Schools. For over 22 long years, CEE has transformed the lives of over 2,000 disadvantaged students, from diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds.

CEE began as the “CEE Saturday Success School” at the Phillis Wheatley Center, 2000-2001. After the Phillis Wheatley Center closed, CEE operated at Greenville Technical College, as the “CEE Saturday Success School” from 2001-2007, with outstanding results in academic achievement! CEE grew, adding weekday Academics, Art, and Fitness Programs at Woodfield Park and Happy Hearts Park of the Greenville County Recreation Commission, 2007. Aided by the late Senator Ralph Anderson, the late Lottie Gibson, Greenville County Council; and led by School Trustee and CEE Co-Founder, Leola Robinson, CEE moved to 1191 Pendleton Street in 2007; with Coach Shakir Robinson as Co-Founder/Director.

CEE MISSION

To transform the lives of at - risk children and young adults, into well rounded students, who are well prepared for their future success.

CEE OFFERS

The CEE TASC (SCDJJ) After-School Center works with over 125 low-income students per year. The CEE Program uplifts students with homework help, STEMs Drills, Honor Roll Incentives, Yoga, the Arts, USA Boxing and Fitness for discipline, Anger Management, Mentoring, reduced frustrations and anxiety.

CEE has produced county championship football and basketball teams, and championship USA and Jr. Olympic boxers.

The annual CEE Summer Academic and Fitness Boot Camp keeps 35-40 low-income, at-risk kids off the streets during the summer. The camp prevents “summer slide” by providing 6 weeks of STEMs Academics, the Arts, Yoga, Health and Wellness, rigorous Fitness for Discipline, and Football Safety workshops.
